

January 31, 1917.—Tonight Ruddock sends me word that von der Lancken wishes to see me at ten o'clock tomorrow morning, on very urgent business. What can it be? I have grown so nervous that apprehension is my companion, living in the midst of alarms. What can it be that is so very urgent?