

March 24, 1917.—Villalobar was in. He had seen von der Lancken about the passports for the Americans, and had, as usual, promises. I told him that I thought the Germans would never let an American out of here, be he citizen, old or young, male or female, C.R.B. or diplomat.